Who do you really want to buy for? Do you really (not including your credit cards) have the money to spend on all of the people you want to buy for? Who are the most important people you want to buy for? Explore other options for presents; could you bake a pie, make a casserole, have your children color a picture, or babysit for anyone? Remember the old saying ‘It’s the thought that counts’. Try to keep your spirit of giving within your means this year while trying to better prepare for next year.
